Story:

The Bible is old.

It was written a long time ago. It was written originally to a group of people who spoke different languages, lived in different places, had different cultures, and lived different stories. It sometimes makes points that we might miss or misunderstand.

So why do we read it? As N.T. Wright says, "We still read the Bible today because, even though it is old, it deals with real issues that are a part of the world we live in today. The Bible's themes, ideas, and images act as threads, weaving the Bible into an enduring, cohesive whole."

A powerful example of the truth of our need to read God's word (an example that is often overlooked and forgotten) is how wonderfully good and useful the Ten Commandments (in Hebrew it is "the ten words/sayings") are for our stories today.

Jesus famously said, "Do not think that I have come to abolish the Law or the Prophets, I have not come to abolish them but to fulfill them." He said this during a time many thought that the Law needed to be modernized with additional laws and rules in order to keep it. Jesus simply reminded them that the Law was simply good for blessing their stories. He reminded them that some things that are old are simply good as they are.

The Ten Commandments are good for blessing our stories today. May we read these wise words and seek to simply follow them and seek the wisdom that they give us to live good stories today!
